Human remains found in burnt home

- Positive ID 'not immediately possible' due to fire: RCMP
- Forensic expert assists investigators as loved ones await news

Family of a Strathcona County homeowner not seen since his residence was destroyed in a fire April 11 are hoping for the best, but bracing for the worst.

RCMP investigators on the weekend confirmed human remains were found in the destroyed Winfield Heights home and have notified family of Dr. John Cyril Koziak.

"I'm just hoping that it wasn't him in the fire," said Neil Koziak yesterday, of his cousin.

Neil lives in Waskatenau, Alta., but said he has been in contact with Julian Koziak, the 66-year-old dentist's brother who lives in Edmonton.

Due to the condition of the remains, a positive ID will take more time but investigators have called in a forensic anthropologist to assist, RCMP said.

The Koziak family has continued to work with Strathcona County RCMP and Strathcona County Victim Services since the fire, said RCMP.

Cpl. Darren Anderson said in a written statement the search for Koziak, last seen April 9 by a neighbour, was made more difficult due to the size of his home and the quantity of items inside, leaving much debris in the fire aftermath to sort through.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Police seek help in search for senior

The Edmonton Police Service is asking for help in finding an 88-year-old woman missing since Saturday afternoon.

Police say Jacqueline Gagnon was last spotted at about 2 p.m. crossing the wooden footbridge by Louis McKinney Park.

The senior, who was wearing a grey toque, red down jacket with fur and black pants and brown boots, has a heart condition and diabetes. She is five-foot-two and weighs 90 pounds.

Anyone who may have seen Gagnon should call EPS at 780-423-4567.

Tips sought in couple's slaying

Police are looking for answers and the public's help as they investigate what happened to Eloise Fendele, 71, and Perry Kit Wong, 72, who are believed to have been killed shortly after they disappeared last Dec. 27.

"I can't imagine there's not somebody out there with critical information," said Det. Dale Johnson.

Bodies of the couple, reported missing Jan. 18, were found last week in a west-end field.

EPS is asking anyone with information to call 780-423-4567 or 1-800-222-TIPS. ● METRO

Rough roads rough on cars

► Edmonton has fixed more than 75,000 potholes so far this year

By the numbers

- Bob Dunford, director of roadway maintenance, estimated there were 450,000 potholes to fix in 2011.
- Each year, on average, there are 400,000 to 420,000 potholes worked on over the course of the spring and summer months.

- Edmonton's record for the most holes was set in 2007, when crews had to fill more than 600,000.

May said. "For a new tire and rim it was over $200."

May called 311 to report the pothole, and said she plans to file a claim with the city.

According to the city, more than $11,000 was paid out in 2010 to 31 drivers. The city dismissed 124 claims, while others are pending.

Coun. Kerry Diotte said it's one of the topics he hears most about, which is why he is offering a $300 donated gift certificate from Stewart's Tires for evidence of the worst potholes posted to his Facebook page (facebook.com/kerry.diotte).

"I know that they work hard," he said of the city crews. "But it's pretty rough — there are a lot more (potholes) this year."

Movie furthers debate over pesticide ban

► Paul Tukey is the executive producer of A Chemical Reaction, a film shown at the Stanley A. Milner Library Theatre yesterday.

► The 20th anniversary of first pesticide ban is this spring

When Paul Tukey was young, his grandmother ate dandelions.

"She called them a good mess of greens ... and now we put toxic poison on them," said the American journalist and lawn-care professional, who was in Edmonton yesterday for the city premiere of his movie, A Chemical Reaction.

The 2008 flick tells the story of Hudson, Que., the first municipality in Canada to ban the use of non-essential pesticides in 1991.

Twenty years later, 80 per cent of Canadians are now protected by similar bans, said Sarah Hawkins of the Canadian Cancer Society.

"Albertans are the last holdouts," she said. "(But) the issue is gaining more attention in Edmonton."

A council committee discussed the validity of such a bylaw in February, in the end wanting information on other cities with the ban, which could take six months to gather.

Tukey said that the idea tends to be controversial but that a pesticide ban is for esthetic chemicals, not to "take away farmers' tools."

Humane society dogged by low adoption rate

The Edmonton Humane Society is hoping people sniffing out a family pet will come to them first, as the facility is seeing an influx of animals.

"Adoptions are low, and it is very unusual," said Shawna Randolph, the humane society's spokesperson.

In the season when people usually come in packs to adopt, last week saw one day of just five pets finding homes — a rate that Randolph said is one-third of the norm.

Among the 270 animals under the society's wing is a black Lab, Augie, brought in as a stray with multiple fractures in his leg last week.

► Augie, a black Lab, came to the humane society last week.

"Our hearts just sunk when we looked at the X-ray and noticed there were bullet fragments, that he'd been shot at some point," said Randolph.

With the lion's share of admitted critters (60 per cent) feline, the non-profit organization is also planning its next Whiskers Wednesday adoption event.

Randolph urges people to not be swayed by "free to a good home" claims, noting spaying or neutering and expenses like microchips are generally not included.

"Instead of going online, come to us," she said. "We have a fantastic variety of animals and breeds, and they all come microchipped, with a year pet licence and the first six weeks of medical insurance."

Trying to keep schools open

- Five Edmonton public schools closed after the 2009-10 school year
- Seven public meetings will be held between tomorrow and October

HEATHER MCINTYRE
@METRONEWS.CA

Despite freezing school closures for two years, members of the city's public school board say the issue hasn't been solved.

"If nothing changes in two years, then the problem that we're having is still going to be there," said trustee Michael Janz.

Following approval of the two-year moratorium last November, the board formed a committee that will hold the first of seven public meetings tomorrow from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Centre for Education, focusing on how urban sprawl affects school enrolment.

Future meetings will touch on the 46-year-old average age of the 197 buildings Edmonton Public Schools operates and the fact that the current space utilization for the district is 67 per cent while Alberta Infrastructure's threshold is 85 per cent, among other topics.

"The committee ... is to examine the issue and find ways to support schools rather than close them," said board chair Dave Colburn.

Janz held a meeting in Ward F earlier this month.

"One of the common issues was a general desire from the participants and parents to try and bring more families back into our mature neighbourhoods," he said, adding schools are opening in new suburban areas.

Majority needed to quell separatism: PM

- ▶ A weak government fuels Quebec sovereigntists, Harper pitches in B.C.
- ▶ Michael Ignatieff focuses on Liberals' health-care reform plan

Stephen Harper is making another pitch for a Conservative majority government, adding the resurgence of Quebec sovereigntists to the growing list of reasons he needs unfettered power in Ottawa.

Now is not the time for a weak minority, which is precisely what the forces of separation in Quebec are hoping for, Harper told a rally yesterday in Richmond, B.C.

The issue arose anew Saturday after Parti Québécois Leader Pauline Marois, who is ahead in provincial polls, won a resounding 93.1 per cent confidence vote from the normally fractious party.

Harper spent most of the weekend in British Columbia, a province where the Tories have a chance to pick up enough seats to form the first Tory majority since Brian Mulroney did so nearly 20 years ago.

Coincidentally, Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff found himself on the same turf yesterday, attempting to contrast his position on health care with that of the government.

Within 60 days of a Liberal government taking power, Ignatieff said, he'd convene a meeting of the provinces and territories to begin hammering out a new health-care accord to replace the current agreement, which expires in 2014.

The Liberals are hoping health care proves to be the government's Achilles heel. The party is currently airing the most negative ads of its campaign, trying to depict Harper as the leader most likely to preside over the demise of medicare.

Harper's plan yesterday was to court immigrant voters by renewing his pledge to crack down on human smuggling, but was again called on to defend another Tory candidate eruption.

Wally Daudrich, a Tory candidate in northern Manitoba, had until recently a comment on his Facebook page calling Barack Obama the worst and least honest U.S. president.

About half of Manitoba is impacted by overland flooding and the waters are still rising, officials in that province said.

While the current flooding is not as devastating as 1997's Flood of the Century, it's now the largest on record.

Usually, the biggest story in any given flood year is the Red River, but this spring it's the Assiniboine.

The Red's largest tributary is experiencing water flows not seen in 35 years. That's when it recorded its worst flood, said Steve Topping, Manitoba Water Stewardship's executive director.

And should the Assiniboine crest at the same time as the Red, it could impact several properties inside the City of Winnipeg.

Jet price includes engines, feds say

Defence officials have shot down reports that Canada would be responsible for supplying the engines needed for the F-35 fighters.

Documents obtained from the Defence department saying the F-35 engines "are provided as gov't-furnished equipment" prompted questions whether the cost of the engines were included in the $9 billion price tag to buy 65 of the stealth fighters.

But the Conservatives and Defence officials yesterday insisted the price made public all along includes everything needed to operate the aircraft — even the engines.

"The $9 billion overall acquisition cost includes 65 aircraft with engines installed," the Defence department said in a statement.

Does it work on polls, too?

When the Liberal jet made a false start this weekend at an airport in Edmonton, a little of Michael Ignatieff's gravity-defying mojo might have Everyone on the plane soon joined in the chorus, urging the aircraft skyward — and it worked.

Deadly tornadoes slam six states

- At least 45 dead after 62 twisters sweep across U.S.
- Worst storm since 1984 when 22 tornadoes killed 57

A devastating storm system spawned dozens of tornadoes as it barreled from Oklahoma to North Carolina, decimating communities in six states and leaving at least 45 people dead in its wake.

Emergency crews searched for victims yesterday in hard-hit swaths of North Carolina, where 62 tornadoes were reported the night before from the worst spring storm in two decades to hit the state.

Eleven people were confirmed dead in Bertie County, Zee Lamb, a county manager, said.

Another four were confirmed dead in southeastern Bladen County, bringing the state's death toll to at least 21.

Daybreak brought news of a horrific death toll in Bertie County, about 210 kilometres east of Raleigh.

The tornado moved through about 7 p.m. Saturday, sweeping homes from their foundations, demolishing others, and flipping cars on tiny rural roads between Askewville and Colerain, Lamb said.

At least three of those who died were from the same family, he said.

One of the volunteers who scoured the rubble was an Iraq war veteran who told Lamb he was stunned by what he saw.

"He did two tours of duty in Iraq and the scene was worse than he ever saw in Iraq — that's pretty devastating," Lamb said.

"There were several cases of houses being totally demolished except for one room, and that's where the people were," he said. "They survived. Pretty devastating."

JAPAN

Evacuation could last 9 months

The operator of Japan's crippled nuclear plant laid out a blueprint yesterday for stopping radiation leaks and stabilizing damaged reactors within the next six to nine months as a first step toward allowing some of the tens of thousands of evacuees to return to the area.

While the government said the time frame was realistic, those forced to flee their homes, jobs and farms were frustrated that their exile is not going to end soon.

And officials acknowledge that unforeseen complications, or even another natural disaster, could set that timetable back even further.

"Well, this year is lost," said Kenji Matsueda, 49, who is living in an evacuation centre in Fukushima after being forced from his home 20 kilometres from the plant. "I have no idea what I will do. Nine months is a long time. And it could be longer. I don't think they really know."

U.S. culture of bargain-hunting keeps prices down

► Canadians say they want low prices, but they don't go to nearly the lengths Americans do to score a deal

With a loonie worth more than a U.S. dollar, bargains abound for Canadian shoppers who hit the stores south of the border.

The reasons for the price differences defy easy explanation. But some suggest an unwillingness of Canadians to spend the same time as Americans to hunt for a bargain may contribute to the gap.

"Shopping seems to be a very big part of what goes on in the U.S. People go down to Florida, to Georgia, to the southern U.S. and one of the activities that you do there are tours going to outlet malls," says

"If you're wondering why prices are lower, it might be part of the explanation."

Soberman suggests that if Canadians want bargains, they must change their shopping habits and "patronize the store that has the lowest price."

Michael Mulvey, marketing professor at the University of Ottawa, says the larger middle class in Canada may also play a role in the price gap. "When you have a larger number of people that are struggling, it does put pressures on to bring prices down," he said.

UAE pushes for more smartphone control

Tighter restrictions on RIM's BlackBerry devices proposed by the United Arab Emirates would likely apply to other smartphones, too, the company says. The UAE's telecommunications regulator wants to limit access to the BlackBerry Enterprise Server system, which provides the most secure form of communication on the handheld devices. It is used by many international companies and government agencies to keep data safe.

Under the UAE's new rules, only organizations with 20 or more BlackBerry accounts would be allowed to use the BES system. Others would have to rely on a less-secure system that is easier for authorities to monitor.

'Epic' patent fight pits Canadian firm against tech giant

PAWEL DWULIT/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

► Loudon Owen, chairman of i4i.

A battle between a small Canadian company and software giant Microsoft is going to the U.S. Supreme Court today in a case that could challenge how patent laws protect exclusive technology.

Toronto-based i4i has been fighting Microsoft in a multimillion-dollar patent infringement suit since 2007. Two lower U.S. courts have ruled that Microsoft used i4i's technology in some versions of its best-selling Word software pro-$290 million US in damages in 2009.

But Microsoft has fought the ruling, and is expected to challenge current standards for overturning patents.

Loudon Owen, chairman of i4i, wants the court to uphold U.S. patent laws, which he said require "clear and convincing" evidence for overturning a patent. He believes that exclusive intellectual property needs to be protected and properly licensed for others to use.

"The patent you're granted has very little meaning if it's not enforceable. Why have a patent if it's useless?" he said.

Patent expert Alexander Poltorak said the case represents a turning point.

"Their fight is somewhat of an epic for the future of U.S. patent law," Poltorak said, adding that if i4i loses it would be "devastating for the entire intellectual property business in the United States." THE CANADIAN PRESS

TERENCE HARDING

WOMAN'S ULTIMATE SACRIFICE

One of the things that people say when they are describing a friend is "He/she has my back."

This means different things to different people. To the office worker, it may mean that someone they consider a friend will stick up for them if there is a conflict at work. For other people, it might mean that if someone attacked them on the street the friend would stay with them rather than run away.

In softer terms, when someone has our back, it means they care about us enough to put themselves at risk by stepping up to the plate to ensure our safety whether the threat is psychological, physical or economical. Very few of us who are not soldiers in battle will find ourselves in the position of finding out whether or not a friend has our back when it really counts.

"She pushed the little girl toward the rest of her life."

On April 7, a six-year-old girl discovered far too early in her life exactly what it means for someone to have your back. She and her great-grandmother were walking to school when they found themselves in the path of an oncoming SUV. The girl's great-grandmother did what many of us think we would do in the same circumstances. She pushed the girl out of the path of the SUV and let it hit her instead.

Perhaps all of us would have done the same thing in those circumstances. But it is only when we are actually faced with those kinds of circumstances that we find out exactly what we are made of. Most of us never have to deal with a contradiction between what we had thought we would do and what we actually did.

I am writing this because I have a friend who was in the emergency room of the hospital where the little girl and her great-grandmother were taken after the accident. According to my friend, the injured little girl kept saying, "Grandma pushed me hard. Grandma pushed me hard."

And indeed she did. She pushed the little girl toward the rest of her life. This six-year-old now knows better than most of us the nobility to which human beings can rise when asked to do so. It is a great tragedy that she had to learn this by losing a person who loved her enough to give up her life for her. Edmonton is poorer for the loss of her great-grandmother.

Worth mentioning

LONDON. Britain's government has begun the process of reviewing the ancient, discriminatory rules of royal succession so if Prince William and Kate Middleton's first child is a girl she would eventually become queen.

The current rule that puts boys ahead of their sisters "would strike most people as a little old-fashioned," Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg said Saturday.

The Cabinet Office said the government accepts that some aspects of the succession rule "could be discriminatory." It said the government has started discussions with British Commonwealth nations that would be directly affected by any change because they recognize the British monarch as their head of state, but declined to release details of those talks.

William is second in line to the throne after his father, Prince Charles, who is Queen Elizabeth II's first-born child.

Charles' sister Anne is lower in the line of succession than her younger brothers Andrew and Edward.

Don't stop to smell this flower

Spring is in the air, and that means an unpleasant smell for one greenhouse at Ohio State University.

A 2.4-metre-tall rainforest plant that's known as a "corpse flower" because it smells like rotting flesh is getting ready to bloom.

The Columbus Dispatch reports greenhouse co-ordinator Joan Leonard has been growing the flowers since 2001, and this would be the first of five to bloom.

Leonard says smelling the Amorphophallus titanium for the first time will be the culmination of a decade of work. But it will be a quick experience because the flower withers after a day or two.

She expects the bloom to open in May, revealing its umbrella-sized "petals." When that happens, the university will have visiting hours to give people a peek at the rare plant.

Will and Kate get a TV movie

► Hollywood is looking to cash in on the Royal Wedding with a raft of made-for-TV movies ► The resemblance of the on-screen Kate and William to the real-life version is questionable, as are the set locations

METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

While they prepare for their walk down the aisle April 29, Prince William and Kate Middleton can rest assured that their romance has earned the Lifetime Television seal of approval, as the U.S. cable channel will be debuting William & Kate, a made-for-TV movie about the royal couple's courtship, tonight, 11 days before they tie the knot.

William & Kate chronicles the early days of the couple's long courtship, including their first meetings at the University of St. Andrews and later coping with the intense media scrutiny that comes with dating a member of the royal family. "I love the you no one gets to see but me," the on-screen version of Middleton gushes to her royal beau.

► Camilla Luddington, right, and Nico Evers-Swindell play the title characters in the Lifetime TV movie William & Kate.

Finding actors who look anything like the real-life happy couple was apparently too much of a challenge, as stars Camilla Luddington and Nico Evers-Swindell's similarities to Kate Middleton and Prince William end at their height difference and hair colour — though even here, Evers-Swindell has a bit too much going on, resembling more a ginger version of Twilight star

Robert Pattinson than the thinning-haired second-in-line to the British throne.

The actors aren't the only ones straining to pass themselves off as their British counterparts: The Lifetime movie was filmed entirely in Los Angeles. Scenes at St. Andrews were actually shot on UCLA's sunny Westwood, Calif., campus, as the university's grounds were some of the few places in the area that looked "old" enough to pass for the 600-year-old school.

Resemblance issues aside, Luddington and Evers-Swindell certainly aren't short on enthusiasm. "Lifetime viewers are going to get a great love story," Luddington says of the movie. "If you're romantic at heart, you're going to love it."

Lifetime is also debuting a six-part documentary, Royal Wedding of a Lifetime, prior to the big nuptials at Westminster Abbey.

Another U.S. cable network, the Hallmark Channel, is also getting in on royal action, with their own film about the couple, William & Kate: A Love Story, that won't debut until August. Perhaps the longer lead time will allow them to find actors with more of a resemblance to the real William and Kate.

Not first royal TV movie

Prince William is the latest Royal to get the made-for-TV treatment, but he's certainly not the first. In fact, his parents' wedding was chronicled in not one but two films — and one even spawned a not-too-pleasant sequel.

The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana (1982)

Starring Christopher Baines as Prince Charles and Catherine Oxenberg, a cousin of the real Charles, as Diana Spencer, the film was probably most notable for featuring Olivia de Havilland as the Queen Mother.

Charles and Diana:

A Royal Love Story (1982)

The second film rushed on to TV screens in the year following Charles and Diana's nuptials. This American-made version starred David Robb as Charles and Caroline Bliss as Diana. Sir Christopher Lee stepped in as Prince Philip.

Charles and Diana:

Unhappily Ever After (1992)

Despite her real-life bloodline to the royal family, Oxenberg reprised her role as Princess Diana for this "sequel" to The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana, chronicling in pulpy soap opera detail the dissolution of Charles and Diana's marriage.

In transferring these epic works from the page to the screen here, have you had to make many changes?

Well, of course, I didn't actually do it. So the challenges here were largely those faced by the show runners and the screenwriters, David Benioff and D.B. Weiss.

But they have done quite a faithful adaptation, I think. There are differences certainly. They've added a few new scenes. They've cut things, scenes here and there and certainly lines.

In any sort of television or film adaptation, you don't have the space that you have in prose. But for the most part ... it is my story and it's the same characters and the same principle major events.

I think my fans are going to be very happy with how faithful it is. Most of the changes I've seen are clearly been made just to accommodate the budget, accommodate the limits of running time.

I keep reading all over the place about how you started writing these books because they were un-filmable, and you wanted to go to amazing places like this. Well, now, it's been filmed. Are you kind still pinching yourself?

I am, actually. Sometimes I think I've fallen through a rabbit hole and I'm in Wonderland here. It's amazing not only that they could film, but, of course, the amount of attention that they're getting. And, you know, the cast that we've assembled, the global thing, it all has me pinching myself.

Could you lay out for us how big of a participant you were in putting this on?

I'm going to be writing one episode per season if the show goes forward.

There's part of me that would like to write more than one episode per season, but I have to finish the books and the books, of course, are enormous and they take a lot of time.

I've been working on this last one for more than five years and I'm only now, you know, at the end of that.

And then there's two more beyond that.

So Dance With Dragons will come out on July 12th, but I've got to go pretty quickly and start the next book.

Trump delays Apprentice decision

Donald Trump

Donald Trump says he has put off agreeing to an extension of his Celebrity Apprentice reality show while he weighs a presidential bid.

The real estate mogul and potential Republican contender says he told NBC on Friday he could not commit to a three-year contract extension for the series until he decides whether he's running.

Trump spoke at an event at his Mar-a-Lago es-

He also said the U.S. should be entitled to Iraqi oil and praised the ultra-conservative tea party.

Trump says he's encouraged by polls showing him with a strong following and says he'll make an announcement on his campaign plans before June.

Recalling Nirvana

► Dave Grohl ready to embrace his Nirvana days once again ► New Foo Fighters album features contributions from key members of Grohl's past

Try as he might, it's been near impossible for Dave Grohl to convince some critics and music fans that his legacy as a songwriter is worth more than his years drumming for the seminal band Nirvana.

Never mind that it's been 17 long years since the death of grunge icon Kurt Cobain, and that Grohl has penned hit after hit.

From the Foo Fighters first major single This Is a Call to alternative radio staples Best of You, All My Life, Monkey Wrench, My Hero and Everlong, few other bands have been as commercially popular and prolific.

In fact, the Foo Fighters have grown so big that Grohl jokes he's now considered just about as uncool as it gets in the rock universe, at least among cynical hipster types.

"You meet kids in younger underground rock bands and I'm like Bon Jovi to those people," Grohl, 42, laughed during an interview this week in Toronto.

So it's somewhat surprising that Grohl has decided to unabashedly reflect on his Nirvana days again, both on the new Foo Fighters album Wasting Light and in the band's documentary Back And Forth.

For years, Grohl has been waiting for the right time to work with some of his old Nirvana collaborators again, but until now had been too sensitive about the idea.

"It seemed there had to be some distance between (Nirvana and the Foo Fighters) and for years I've really had to balance that to give Nirvana the respect it deserves. I wouldn't be here if it weren't for Nirvana," Grohl said.

Wasting Light was recorded with producer Butch Vig, who worked on the classic Nevermind, and former Nirvana bass player Krist Novoselic is seen in the documentary playing on the track I Should Have Known. At the tail end of the movie, Vig hypothesizes that the song is about the Nirvana days and Cobain, which Grohl doesn't deny.

► Dave Grohl of The Foo Fighters

When I first started writing that song it was about someone else that I was involved with and at the end of the day I said to myself, I should have known that this was going to happen," Grohl explains in the movie.

This week, Grohl said enough time has passed that he can acknowledge his Nirvana history and embrace it.

"You just have to kind of shut off that switch that keeps you concerned about what other people think," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nicolas Cage booked in New Orleans

Nicolas Cage was arrested in New Orleans over the weekend on charges of domestic violence and disturbing the peace, according to TMZ.

Sources say a "very drunk" Cage and his wife, Alice Kim, were arguing loudly outside, prompting a taxi driver to alert the police. When they arrived, Cage reportedly taunted the cops with, "Why don't you just arrest me?" Eventually, the officers obliged.

Kim is reportedly denying any domestic violence occurred and is not planning to press charges.

Does this movie look good or bad and why?

Smurfs: I think the movie looks colourful. But the lines, are they supposed to be funny?

Rio: It looks more good than bad. Kids really like Pedro, the red bird. Kids at my school are already copying his phrases.

The Zookeeper: It looks better than The Smurfs, but I wouldn't give it a solid thumbs up.

Winnie the Pooh: It looks funny. Good job Disney!

Kung Fu Panda 2: Awesome, think I want to see it. This is a great movie for your kids.

Cars 2: Looks pretty good, I like it.

Do you think kids will want to see this? Why?

Yes, but not because it looks good. It is because it is their parents' beloved characters and in 3-D!

The bird versus monkey war makes kids fans in seconds.

Yes. Little kids love talking animals. Movie companies love to make movies about kids' favourite subjects.

Yes, it seems better than I thought, but kids might look at it and say, "I don't want to watch another Winnie the Pooh movie."

Of course! Who wouldn't want to see a talking panda doing Kung Fu with Jack Black's voice?

Kids loved the movie Cars in 2006. What makes you think they wouldn't like this one?

What do you hope happens to the main characters?

I hope they go to Central Park.

I hope Rio gets a chance to swim in the ocean.

I hope the monkeys make the zookeeper eat bananas and I hope he can ride on an elephant.

I hope Owl stops being so bossy.

I hope the characters are the same as in the first one.

I just hope Sally comes back. In the trailer it doesn't look like she does.

What are the chances you'll see it in the theatre?

I'd say about 27 per cent. It doesn't sound as funny as its supposed to look.

Probably a good 65 per cent. It is probably going to win awards.

A 41 per cent chance. I don't think it looks quite funny enough.

Maybe a 99 per cent. It looks pretty good!

Probably 100 per cent. It looks cool!

100 per cent. My Dad has figured it. Kids are gonna love this. It is a 10-year-old boy's dream.

The perfect treat for Passover

► Baked goods for the Jewish holiday must be made without flour ► This Honey Coconut Cake employs alternatives

To be suitable for Passover, baked goods must be made without flour. This cake replaces it with a blend of matzo meal and ground nuts that then are flavoured with honey, coconut, orange zest and spices. The result is a satisfyingly syrupy-sticky cake that is wonderfully delicious.

Preparation:

1 Heat the oven to 150 C (300 F). Coat an 20-cm (8-inch) springform pan with cooking spray, then line the bottom with parchment paper.

2 In the bowl of a food processor, pulse together the almonds, coconut and matzo until the mixture is reduced to coarse crumbs.

3 In the bowl of a stand mixer, combine the eggs, honey, sugar and salt. Beat with the whisk attachment on high until very thick, about 7 to 8 minutes. Stir in the zest, cinnamon and cardamom. Fold the coconut and almond mixture into the eggs in 2 batches. Pour the mixture into the prepared pan. Bake until a toothpick inserted at the centre comes out with a few moist crumbs, 35 to 40 minutes.

4 While the cake bakes, make the syrup. In a small saucepan over medium-high, combine the water, sugar, honey, orange juice and cardamom. Bring to a boil and cook, stirring, until the sugar is dissolved. Set aside.

5 When the cake is finished baking, use a skewer to poke holes across the surface of the cake. Pour 160 ml (2/3 cup) of syrup over the cake. Allow to cool.

6 To serve, run knife along the outside of pan and remove sides of the pan. Transfer to serving platter and remove bottom of the pan. Peel off the parchment paper if it doesn't come off. Top with toasted coconut and serve with extra syrup.

in need?

Try some of these simple ideas.

Donate clothing

There are a number of different charities and organizations with drop boxes in parking lots or others that pick clothing up from your doorstep to sell or give to people in need.

Host a garage sale

Collect all your new or gently used items cluttering your home and sell them with the purpose of donating all the funds raised to a charity.

Organizations, such as Christian Children's Fund of Canada, have environmentally-friendly items like fuel-efficient stoves and rainwater harvesting tanks, which you can purchase with your earnings. By picking a specific item or setting a goal for the amount of money you would like to raise, you will increase people's enthusiasm to help you reach your goal.

Not only will this sale create more room in your home, but by advertising that the money will go to charity, your sales will also set an example for others in your community.

Recycle

Be sure that any items that cannot be donated or given away are disposed of in the most environmentally friendly way.

Take left over clothing or furniture to your local dump where they will help you sort your items into recyclables and other waste.

I recently got hired as an intern at KBS+P, a marketing and advertising firm in downtown Toronto. Although I have learned a great deal from sitting in on meetings and completing project tasks, the most valuable and practical skills I have learned were from having one-on-one meetings with executives in the company.

I was surprised by not only their willingness, but also their eagerness to share their knowledge and experience.

What shocked me most was that these senior people approached me to share their knowledge of the industry, as well as provide their advice on career goals and how to succeed in the advertising business.

They have continually followed up with practical advice and have generously shared an ample amount of reading material to explore the industry further.

Most importantly, they have made a genuine commitment to educating their interns, knowing that we could potentially be the future of the company.

Their sincere interest in my career development has inspired me to work for the firm and has pushed me to work hard for the company.

Down with technology

► Some youth are questioning the proliferation of technology and the role it plays in their lives

If technology had a fan page on Facebook, Will Tilleczek wouldn't like it. He couldn't, considering he has no profile on the social networking site.

The 19-year-old university student, in fact, has no online presence at all beyond an email address he checks a couple of times a day. His days as a cell-phone user are numbered, as he plans to give up his mobile device when the contract with his wireless provider expires.

Tilleczek's antipathy to the technology so popular among his peers doesn't stem from any negative experiences — he simply believes his time is better spent away from a screen. "You find yourself wanting to use (technology) even when there's no good reason," Tilleczek said. "It keeps you from wanting to be alone and taking some time to think."

Tilleczek said portable devices often tempt him to make calls or send texts regardless of whether or not he has anything to say. He decried text messaging as

"impersonal," adding the rapid-fire messages that friends often exchange to make plans often result in misinterpretation.

Research suggests Tilleczek's attitude doesn't reflect the norm for young Canadians. Matthew Johnson, director of education for the Media Awareness Network, said data from both the U.S. and Canada indicate technology use is on the rise in nearly every age group, but particularly among youth.

"When we talk about how many young people are online, the number is very close to 100 per cent," Johnson said.

But anecdotes from the most current crop of research subjects suggest Tilleczek's approach may not be as anomalous as it may seem on paper, Johnson said, adding he's aware that many youth are beginning to question technology. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Learning science from a distance

► Technology allows distance learners to perform labs at home, such as virtually dissecting a frog online

One of the questions that parents and students often have about distance education high school courses is concerning the practical application of knowledge, such as lab work, are fulfilled. This is especially true for those considering a science course like biology or chemistry.

With today's technology, distance education courses have evolved from reading black and white text about labs in a textbook to participating in online interactive activities.

"As studying at a distance becomes readily available to anyone looking to earn high school credits or to upgrade skills on their own time, it is vito virtually perform a full dissection online, in the comfort of their home, library or wherever they choose to study."

Reaching far beyond textbooks, modern instructional designers include various methodologies to engage students and support learning.

A learner studying independently can now expect courses to include digital components such as videos and news clips, online discussion forums and interactive tutorials, creating a learning experience that entertains and engages while educating, earning credentials and meeting the expectations of the curriculum. NEWS CANADA

BBA: THE DEGREE THAT DELIVERS

Alexandria Mah works full-time as a Revenue Canada auditor, plays intercollegiate soccer for the NAIT Oaks, and is pursuing both a degree and a CGA credential. She needed a degree program that delivered flexibility and results — and found it in NAIT's Bachelor of Business Administration.

The BBA builds on Alexandria's previous JR Shaw School of Business diploma, allowing her to finish quickly and work toward her accounting designation at the same time. And the choice of full-time, part-time and online course options means she can tailor her studies to fit her busy schedule.

Preds pounce on Ryan-less Ducks

Mike Fisher broke a tie at 10:21 of the third period, and the Nashville Predators took advantage of Bobby Ryan sitting out to beat the Anaheim Ducks 4-3 yesterday for a 2-1 lead in the first-round series.

Canucks on verge of sweep in Chicago

► Champs on the ropes after failing to cash in on power plays

Mikael Samuelsson scored the go-ahead goal in the third period, Roberto Luongo made 30 saves and the Vancouver Canucks moved within a victory of sweeping defending Stanley Cup champion Chicago, beating the Blackhawks 3-2 last night.

The Canucks, with the best record in the NHL during the regular season, can finish off the first-round series tomorrow night at the United Center.

Christian Ehrhoff and Daniel Sedin also scored for the Canucks, eliminated by the Blackhawks in the first round the previous two seasons.

Duncan Keith and Patrick Sharp had power-play goals for the Blackhawks, but it was a night of missed chances for Chicago.
